ACADEMIC STRESS

This short documentary takes a close look at the academic pressure faced by secondary students in South Korea and its effects on their day-to-day lives. The pressure to perform well in examinations drives students to study for 18 hours a day and resort to cram schools.

The dark cloud of high-stakes examinations looms large above students and deprives them of a normal life. It is also noteworthy that youth suicide rates in South Korea are among the highest in the world. Join us for a provocative and engaging discussion and gain insights from your peers on the impact of academic pressure on youth.
