PRESENTERS:

ABSTRACT:

The coronavirus pandemic has shaken schools across the globe to the core. It challenges our assumptions, practices and expectations of learning and teaching, forcing us to rethink the role and importance of technology, wellbeing and the relevancy of education to students' future.

In this interactive workshop, the speaker is going to provide some thoughts and considerations for developing school strategic plans that capitalize on the new opportunities brought forth by the pandemic. Three school development focuses, namely, wellbeing, digitalization and careerization, will be discussed.
